The readings for this Sunday included excerpts from:

“Winter Mind” by Philip Simmons (UU World Jan/Feb 2001),

“Surviving the dark winter solstice,” James Carroll (Boston Globe, December 8, 2008), and

“Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening” by Robert Frost

Simmons’ essay is extraordinary for many reasons and I encourage you to read it. The UUA archives UU World articles on line. Other words from the service, including the guided meditation, were all extemporaneous.
